Winner of the prestigious Queen Elizabeth Competition in 2013, Boris Giltburg will be appearing in a solo recital at San Jose's Trianon Theatre on March 11, followed by a meet-and-greet with patrons. Noted by Gramophone and BBC Music Magazine for his interpretative Rachmaninov, Giltburg brings his subtlety, power and imagination to Silicon Valley audiences.

"Giltburg has the capacity to identify with and encapsulate the moods of each piece while artlessly crafting them into a shapely span." Daily Telegraph

More information: Steinway Society-The Bay Area is proud to be part of Boris Giltburg's impressive concert schedule, which includes recitals at London's Wigmore Hall, the Musikgebouw in Amsterdam, the Rubenstein Gala in Beijing, and New York's Carnegie Hall.

A Russian-born, Israeli concert pianist, Boris Giltburg brings a deep appreciation and eloquent interpretive abilities to the music he performs. Passion and intellect both shape his dazzling performances. In 2013 he won first prize at the prestigious Queen Elisabeth Competition, catapulting his career to a new level. In 2015 he began a long-term recording contract with Naxos Records.

Of his new Rachmaninov recording, Gramophone said, "...vision will place him among the truly memorable Rachmaninov interpreters, an elect including Moiseiwitsch, Horowitz, Kappel, Richter and Cliburn. His originality stems from a convergence of heart and mind..."
Gramophone, May 2016

Giltburg made his BBC Proms debut in 2010, and has toured South America and China. His recently released Rachmaninov CD was selected as BBC Music Magazine's August Instrumental Choice, as well as Gramophone's June Recording of the Month.

In its 2015-16 season, the Royal Scottish National Orchestra invited him for seven concerts in their Rachmaninov series.
